CHEAP PLANT TO PRESERVE TIMBERS

O. A. C. FORESTRY DEPARTMENT HAS ONE FARMERS MAY PROFITABLY COPY.

Corvallis, May 4.—A simple and inexpensive treating plant has been set up at O. A. C. by the forestry department to teach students how farm timbers, such as fence posts, may be protected from weather, insects, fungus and other destructive influences at a comparatively small cost. It can be duplicated on any farm for $1.00 or less, and will readily pay for itself in a short time in the added length of time the treated timbers will last.

To a certain extent the treatment prevents the growth of the mosses and lichens which hold moisture and thus hasten the decay of the wood. The principal action of the preservative, however, is to kill any spores of fungi that come in contact with the wood; and if there is no fungous growth there will be no decay.

The plant consists of a light frame shed with two galvanized iron tanks, both fitted with steam coils so that the temperature of the contents can easily be regulated. In one the creosote, which is the principal preservative used, is heated to 212 or 220 degrees Fahrenheit and kept there while the timbers soak in it for about three hours. They are then removed to the other tank, where the preservative is kept at about 110 degrees for two hours, after which the timbers are ready for final removal and use.

Preserving the timbers adds 8 or 10 cents to the cost of each post, but it lengthens the life of the post two or three times, thus saving much labor and expense in cutting and setting new ones. Every large farm can well afford to operate such a plant, and small farms might combine in operating one in co-operation. Such co-operative plants are common in some parts of the country.

The railroads are now using beech, loblolly pine, and birch, treated in this manner, although these timbers were impracticable before the treating method was inaugurated. They lasted but four or five years then, whereas they now last, with the same use and exposure, about fourteen to eighteen years.

A VERY OLD TROUBLE.

From Goodwin's Weekly.

Whenever the stock market is ailing—because the spring wheat country needs rain, or because Mr. Morgan is said to have indigestion, or the Interstate commission makes a new ruling—a gloomy chorus repeats that the bases of financial calculation have been radically changed within five years because a brand-new factor has been introduced—namely, the invasion, by the Government, of the field of private business enterprise.

Government has been invading the field of private business enterprise time out of mind. For example, Crassus was the ablest captain of industry of his day. "Observing," says Plutarch, "how liable the city was to fires, by reason of the houses standing so near together," he trained a large body of slaves until they became expert fire fighters. When a fire broke out Crassus promptly appeared "to buy the houses that were on fire and those in the neighborhood which, in the danger and uncertainty, the proprietors were willing to part with for little or nothing." Having bought the houses, Crassus turned loose his fire fighters and put out the blaze, "so that the greatest part of Rome at one time or another came into his hands." That was certainly a splendid stroke of private business enterprise. But in the course of time Augustus organized fire companies and put out the fires for nothing. The trouble of which our friends complain is really as old as the hills.

WHAT LABOR THINKS OF "BREAKFAST FOOD" POST

From Portland Labor Press.

The "open shoppers" always talk about peace between capital and labor. For years there was not peace between the Buck's stove people and organized labor. Now there is. But along comes Peanut Dope Post and tries to make the courts make war again. The working man who would permit any of the baked sawdust and bran hog feed on his table that this union fighter turns out would wear a non-union suit of clothes. A working man having the self-respect of a chicken thief will dump his stuff in the sewer, where it all belongs.

If you want good feed for your team and good treatment, come to White Front Barn. 97bfr

STATE EXHIBIT OF FISH AT ASTORIA CENTENNIAL.

Salem, May 4.—The state department of fisheries will maintain an extensive exhibit in Astoria during the Centennial celebration showing in detail the methods of the propagation of fish, salmon in particular. A number of aquarium tanks showing the many species of live fish native to the state of Oregon, as well as a fish hatchery in active operation, will make this exhibit complete and an educational feature of great interest to all centennial visitors.

IN LATE WINTER AND EARLY SPRING We seldom feel JUST RIGHT

At such a time KASPARILLA is the best and safest Blood Purifier, the most successful prescription for spring humors and such disorders of the blood as boils, pimples, pustules, blotches, sores and cutaneous eruptions. Kasparilla is admitted to be the best remedy for that lack of energy and the peculiar debility so prevalent during the close of winter and the opening of spring. For derangements of the digestive organs it is a natural corrective, operating directly upon the liver and alimentary canal, gently but persistently stimulating a healthy activity. Its beneficial influence extends, however, to every portion of the system, aiding in the processes of digestion and assimilation of food, promoting a wholesome, natural appetite, correcting sour stomach, bad breath, irregularities of the bowels, constipation and the long list of troubles directly traceable to those unwholesome conditions. Kasparilla dispels drowsiness, headache, backache and despondency due to inactivity of the liver, kidneys and digestive tract. It is a strengthening tonic of the highest value.
